

The Medicine Group Welcomes Brittany Peterson, MPH as an Associate Medical Writer

New Hope, PA – June, 2016.

The Medicine Group (TMG), an independently-owned medical communications agency with offices in New Hope, PA announced this week the addition of Brittany Peterson, MPH as an Associate Medical Writer. Brittany joins TMG’s medical and scientific affairs team and will bring her research, writing, and epidemiological experience to the agency’s immunology, gastroenterology, and oncology clients.

Brittany recently completed a Masters in Public Health (MPH) from Acradia University, where she focused on epidemiology and international development. Her research on tuberculous population health culminated in field study in Ghana that supported her capstone. Brittney’s academic research interests include epidemiology, infectious diseases, and pathogenesis.

Before joining The Medicine Group, Brittany worked for nearly 10 years as an ophthalmic technician and public health volunteer. Beyond her MPH, Brittany holds a BA in Biology from Bryn Mawr College and a Certified Ophthalmic Assistant (COA) accreditation from the Joint Commission on Allied Health Personnel in Ophthalmology. She brings a number of technical abilities to TMG, including SPSS expertise and research skills.

“We’re excited to welcome Brittany to the team at TMG,” said Managing Director Philip Sjostedt. “Brittany’s experience will be a valuable addition to our growing medical affairs department, and brings a valuable public health perspective to her work.”

About The Medicine Group

The Medicine Group (TMG) is an independently-owned healthcare communications agency specializing in the development and implementation of strategic medical commercialization plans. With decades of experience in publication planning and medical communications, the teams at TMG are focused on the needs of our healthcare clients and focus on excellence in scientific acumen, tactical delivery, and dedicated service.